Jonathan Gordon, Reporter

June 02, 2017 BINGHAMTON, N.Y. -

".... the Binghamton Live on the Waterfront event. "The goal is to make Binghamton a more fun place to be," said Robert Murphy, the Binghamton Director of Economic Development. Not only did the event bring local businesses into the forefront, but it also served another important purpose.

"It makes people stay in Binghamton and this makes it a more attractive place to be," said Murphy.

... For the musicians, like Steven Kocich of the band Deveroe, the opportunity to perform at a local stage is an amazing opportunity.

"There's not a ton of venues around the area looking for specifically original material, so it's nice to have something where we can play the songs that we wrote," said Kocich. There will be more Waterfront events this summer with the next few already planned for July."
